RESEARCH INTERESTS

My research takes a social informatics perspective on the relationships and interactions between information-centric communities, information and communication technologies (ICTs), and the information behaviour of their users. I am also interested in digital libraries, scientific collaboration, social media, and social and community theories in library and information science. My particular and emerging focus is on the practice and support of information and knowledge sharing across the boundaries that may exist between communities (especially online), and the roles that boundary-spanning individuals and ICTs play in such sociotechnical practices.

EDUCATION

PhD in Information Studies

Aug 2009 – Aug 2014

School of Information (iSchool), Florida State University, Tallahassee, FL

Dissertation: "The Roles of Digital Libraries as Boundary Objects Within and Across Social and Information Worlds." Committee: Michelle M. Kazmer (chair), Gary Burnett, Sanghee Oh, Deborah J. Armstrong (university representative, Management Information Systems).

M.S. in Library and Information Studies (MSLIS)

Aug 2006 – Apr 2008

College of Information (iSchool), Florida State University, Tallahassee, FL

Specialized in Information Architecture and Information Organization. Significant coursework in digital libraries, information organization and metadata, usability analysis, information behaviour, and research methods.

B.S. in Computer Science

Aug 1999 – Dec 2002

College of Engineering and Computer Science, University of Central Florida, Orlando, FL

Graduated magna cum laude with University Honors. Significant coursework in computer programming and information systems development theory and skills, including C, C++, Java, database concepts, and technical writing.

RESEARCH EXPERIENCE

Funded

Exploring Socio-Emotional Motivations, Information Sharing, and Community Coherence in Stack Exchange Academia Jul 2016 – present

Looks to further our understanding of the social and emotional reasons and motivations that lead users to ask and answer questions and otherwise participate, interact, and share information on social questioning-and-answering sites. Employing content analysis, a survey, and semi-structured interviews to explore users' socio-emotional motivations and the influence of these motivations on the potential coherence of communities around their questioning, answering, and interactions in the Academia section of Stack Exchange, a social Q&A site for academics and higher education students. Analysis draws from the literature on socio-emotional motivations, Burnett and Jaeger's theory of information worlds, and the concept of coherence from Star's boundary object theory. Funded through a Support for the Advancement of Scholarship (SAS) Grant provided by the University of Alberta Faculty of Education.

Immigrants' Information Values, Sharing, and Cultural Memory: Interactions with ICT Use in an Online Community Sep 2015 – present

Collaborative research with Alyssa Hyduk (research assistant Sep 2015 – Aug 2016 and MLIS student) investigating how the information and communication technologies used by immigrant and expatriate members of an online community interact with the information values and information sharing behaviours of community members and the cultural memory established by the community. Drawing on Burnett and Jaeger's theory of information worlds and key concepts from literature on cultural memory. Partially funded through a Start Up Grant provided by the University of Alberta Faculty of Education.

The Roles of Digital Libraries as Boundary Objects Within and Across Social and Information Worlds Dec 2012 – Jul 2014

Dissertation research focused on the roles that two digital libraries, LibraryThing and Goodreads, play as boundary objects in facilitating translation, coherence, and convergence in pre-existing and new emergent communities. Drew on Star's boundary object theory, Strauss's social worlds framework, and Burnett and Jaeger's theory of information worlds. Three roles were identified:

(a) establishing community and organizational structure; (b) facilitating users' sharing of information values; and (c) building and maintaining social ties, networks, and community culture. Funded by a Beta Phi Mu Eugene Garfield Doctoral Dissertation Fellowship and a Florida State University Esther Maglathlin Doctoral Research Scholarship.

Quality Evaluation of Health Answers in Social Q&A: A Comparison Between Health Reference Librarians, Nurses, and Questioners Jan 2011 – Apr 2013

Collaborative research with Sanghee Oh (PI) and Yong Jeong Yi that investigated the influence of social media in and on health information seeking and sharing behaviours. Compared health reference librarians, nurses, and questioners' quality evaluations of answers to questions on Yahoo! Answers, a social Q&A Web site. Found both objective and subjective strategies have a place in the seeking, sharing, and evaluation of information. Funded by a Florida State University First Year Assistant Professor (FYAP) grant awarded to Sanghee Oh. Project Web site: <http://socialqa.cci.fsu.edu/hae.html>

Virtual Scientific Teams: Life-Cycle Formation and Long-Term Scientific Collaboration Jan 2010 – Aug 2012

Graduate research assistant for this National Science Foundation (NSF)-funded 2½ year project (#0942855) with numerous Florida State University iSchool faculty under the leadership of Kathy Burnett (PI). Aimed to identify what social and organizational factors best support the transition from short-term, experiment focused, virtual scientific collaborations to long-term productive, innovative programs of scientific research. Found successful juggling of, bridging between, and adapting to multiple communities and lifecycles increases the likelihood of a team's successful transition.

Unfunded

Supporting Community-Building in Digital Libraries: A Pilot Study of LibraryThing Jan 2010 – Apr 2010
Piloted a survey instrument to measure the level of support provided by the LibraryThing digital library for community-building behaviours and activities by its users, under the guidance of Besiki Stvilia, as a first step towards my research goals. While only a pilot study with concomitant limitations, some interesting findings were nevertheless uncovered, discussed in my poster presented at ASIS&T 2010 (see above). My dissertation further explored these issues.

TEACHING EXPERIENCE

University of Alberta Sep 2015 – present

Assistant Professor

Digital Libraries (LIS 538) Graduate IT elective.	Winter 2018
Human Information Interaction (LIS 598; special topics) Graduate elective.	Winter 2017
Technology, Information, and Society (LIS 598; special topics) Graduate IT elective.	Winter 2016, 2017, 2018
Foundations of Library and Information Studies (LIS 501) Graduate core; two sections.	Fall 2015, 2016, 2017

Course Development

Technology, Information, and Society (LIS 598; special topics)	Sep 2015 – Jan 2016
--	---------------------

Developed course outline / syllabus, readings, and assignments for a special topics course on the critical analysis of technology and information in our society. The course educates students in critical and interdisciplinary examination, from human and social perspectives, of technology in the context of libraries and information organizations and of the complex relationships between technology, information, and society.

Florida State University

Aug 2009 – May 2015

Adjunct Professor / Graduate Lead Instructor

- Technologies for Information Professionals (LIS 3353) Spring 2015; Spring 2014; Fall 2013
Undergraduate core. Supervised a teaching assistant Fall 2013 and Spring 2014.
- Information Science (LIS 3267) Spring 2015
Undergraduate core.
- Information Technology Project (LIS 4910) Fall 2014
Undergraduate capstone.

Graduate Teaching Assistant

- Information, Technology, and Older Adults (LIS 5916) Summer 2013
Graduate elective. Helped choose readings and develop syllabus before and after this first offering of the course.
- Information Systems and Services (LIS 3706) Spring 2013
Undergraduate core. Led and facilitated weekly lab sessions.
- Assessing Information Needs (LIS 5203) Fall 2012
Graduate core. Led one class session on theories & paradigms in information behaviour research.
- Technical Communication for Information Professionals (LIS 3021) Fall 2012
Undergraduate core. Led weekly lab sessions.
- Digital Libraries (LIS 5472) Fall 2009
Graduate recommended elective. Led one class session on social aspects of digital libraries.
- Information Security (LIS 5916) Fall 2009
Graduate recommended elective. Led one class session on access control; helped choose readings.

Course Development

- Qualitative Research Methods May 2010 – Aug 2010
Developed, in collaboration with Michelle M. Kazmer and Gary Burnett, a proposed syllabus for a new doctoral seminar at the FSU iSchool in qualitative research methods as an outgrowth of a directed independent study (DIS). Included writing objectives, selecting suitable readings, and determining appropriate assignments for students. After additional feedback, suggestions, and minor modifications by Kazmer and Burnett, the syllabus is now in use at the FSU iSchool.

Invited Guest Lectures

- Communities, Technologies, and Information Sharing Oct 2015
School of Library and Information Studies, University of Alberta, Edmonton, AB
Foundations of LIS (LIS 501, Michael McNally).
- Social Digital Libraries Nov 2011
School of Information Management, Dalhousie University, Halifax, NS
Digital Libraries (INFO 6840, Anatoliy Gruzd). Via Skype.

PROFESSIONAL EXPERIENCE*Social Media Contributor

Aug 2014 – Sep 2015

Association for Information Science and Technology (ASIS&T), Silver Spring, MD

Contributed to and assisted in maintaining ASIS&T social media venues, including the ASIS&T blog, Facebook page, and Twitter feed. Promoted and encouraged engagement with ASIS&T HQ, SIG, and Chapter activities through social media venues. Helped coordinate with SIGs and Chapters on social media engagement efforts. Assisted with surveys on social media use and ASIS&T's online presence.

Library Intern Jan 2008 – Apr 2008
National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA) Miami Regional Library, Miami, FL
 Evaluated, analyzed, and improved usability of digital library Web site interface; upgraded and secured database system and restored access to often-requested digital collections; digitized gray literature and scientific data; provided basic reference and customer services to patrons.

Information Technology and Systems Consultant May 2003 – Aug 2006
Self-employed, Miami, FL
 Analyzed and resolved issues with users' computer software and hardware drivers; installed hardware equipment and set up associated software; assisted and educated clients in using computers, information systems, and the Internet, solving information and technology problems.

FELLOWSHIPS, SCHOLARSHIPS, AND COLLOQUIA

CSST 2016 Summer Research Institute Jun 2016
Consortium for the Science of Sociotechnical Systems, Stevenson, WA, June 27 – July 1, 2016
 Invited to be part of a group of inter- and trans-disciplinary junior scholars studying the design and use of sociotechnical systems. The Institute included mentoring, peer networking, and skill building to help participants identify substantive ways that sociotechnical theories, approaches, and tools can advance their work with the design and understanding of critical sociotechnical systems.

ASIS&T 2015 Doctoral Seminar Nov 2015
78th Association for Information Science and Technology Annual Meeting, St. Louis, MO, November 10, 2015
 Part of a group of top candidates from ASIS&T's dissertation and dissertation proposal competitions, meeting and discussing with primary mentor Ken Fleischmann and engaging in group interaction with other mentors and candidates about my research, teaching, service, and career objectives.

IR 14 Doctoral Colloquium Oct 2013
